Welcome from the Dean

Dear Friends:

I am delighted to introduce the Spring 2009 issue of the College of Arts and Sciences newsletter - CAS Connections. I hope this communication will continue to strengthen our growing community of students, faculty, staff, alumni, partners and donors.

This has been a year of great achievement for our college, marked by increased enrollments, student and faculty accomplishments, fundraising success and programmatic innovations. I hope you will enjoy reading some of the highlights of this past year in the following pages. This summer, a complete annual report for the college will be posted on our website at www.roosevelt.edu/cas. As always, I welcome your comments and suggestions. Please contact me at lweiner@roosevelt.edu or at (312) 341-3671.

With regards,

Lynn Weiner, Dean

CAS Students Make Headlines

Journalism graduate student Jacqueline Sanders’ story I Was 11 When My Life Changed Forever (about the loss of her arm in an accident) was published in the Chicago Sun-Times in May. Biology student Rajalekshmy Shyam presented a poster session of her research on WNT Signal Transduction in Trabecular Meshwork Cells at the American Society for Cell Biology conference in December. Sociology major Abdul-Aziz Hassan and Women’s and Gender Studies graduate student Heidi Truax won the Mansfield Institute Matthew Freeman Social Justice Award. Hassan was recognized for his work in gang violence prevention at the Little Village Lawndale High School. Truax was recognized for tutoring and preparing homeless LGBTQ teens for their GED, ACT and SAT exams at the Teen Living Program. PsyD student and Second LT US Army Reserves Craig Woodworth received a scholarship from the US Army and is completing a practicum at the Hines Veterans Hospital. The Department of Psychology’s PsyD Program placed 100% of its internship-eligible doctoral students for 2009-10 (national match rate is 79%) for the second year in a row. Students will work throughout the United States with diverse populations including adolescents, prisoners and Native Americans. Five students in the Department of Psychology’s MA in Clinical Professional Psychology Program took the National Counselor Exam in October. All five passed the exam and our group’s average surpassed the averages for all comparison groups. A new student organization (RU Sociological Society) hosted a panel discussion with Iraq Veterans Against the War and a conference on Social Justice in a Changing World with over 30 student presenters from Chicago and as far away as Puerto Rico and Uganda. The student newspaper (The Torch) won three Illinois College Press Association Awards: Christina Bruzek won first place in the photo shootout competition; Alex Hernandez won second place for headline writing; and Tyler Tessman won third place for front page layout.

Profile: Assistant Professor of Biology Kelly Wentz-Hunter

Assistant Professor of Biology Kelly Wentz-Hunter exemplifies quality teaching, scholarship and community outreach. She was elected as one of twelve 2009-10 NSF/SENCER Leadership Fellows (Science Education for New Civic Engagement and Responsibilities) for her work incorporating civic engagement into the curriculum. Kelly presented a keynote address for the Education Initiative Forum at the Annual Meeting of the American Society for Cell Biology in December. Learning Scientific Content with Research and Reflection on Life and Death Issues referenced Wentz-Hunter’s Cancer Biology course that combines cell and molecular biology of cancer, social justice advocacy and research-based creative writing. Students role-play cancer patients, research their cancers and journal the progress of the disease and their experiences as patients. To fulfill the community advocacy course goal, the class formed a student chapter of the American Cancer Society’s Colleges Against Cancer. The chapter sponsored an event on cancer survivorship at Roosevelt University’s Science Day and participated in the Chicago Relay for Life event. To finish a productive academic year, Kelly was awarded a Roosevelt University Employee Recognition Award for Outstanding Service. CAS Faculty Achievements

Associate Professor of Computer Science Eric Berkowitz incorporated service learning into his Network Applications Program course by having his students enhance the website of Glenkirk, a Northbrook organization that provides services to the developmentally disabled. Associate Professor of Women’s and Gender Studies Ann Brigham was selected as a member of the Chicago Domestic Violence Court Watch Program Steering Committee which promotes accountability, transparency and adherence to the Illinois Domestic Violence Act in the judicial system. Professor of Journalism John Fountain was selected as a Fellow of the University of California-Berkeley Multimedia Reporting and Convergence workshop in January. Professor of Psychology Steven Meyers received the 2009 Action Teaching Award from the Social Psychology Network for classroom activities that addressed social problems and impacted students’ attitudes and behaviors in his Youth Violence Seminar. During the spring semester, Assistant Professor of Philosophy Svetozar Minkov served as visiting professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Assistant Professor of Economics Ozgur Orhangazi served as visiting scholar at the Venezuelan Central Bank. Professor of Economics Samuel Rosenberg presented at the Japan Institute for Labour Policy and Training Conference in Tokyo in January and was the only invited speaker from the United States. Associate Professor of History Margaret Rung was interviewed by the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation about FDR’s and Obama’s first 100 days in office. The National Science Foundation selected Associate Professor of Chemistry Josh Telser to participate in a workshop on computational and theoretic chemistry at the Georgia Institute of Technology in May.

PsyD Student Joanna Thome Awarded Research Grant to Study Attitudes on Adoption by Same-Sex Couples

PsyD student Joanna Thome (MA ’08) won the 2009 American Psychological Foundation national grant for her dissertation that will analyze perceptions of same-sex partners who seek to adopt. Thome’s project was selected for the $1,500 Roy Scrivener Memorial grant which supports research on lesbian, gay and bisexual family psychology and therapy. Assistant Professor of Psychology Cami McBride is Joanna’s dissertation advisor and calls the project “significant in that it has policy implication in terms of gays and lesbians being able to adopt children.” Thome plans to complete her doctorate in 2011 and states “I hope my project will be a catalyst for social and political change movements for the equality of all.” For more information about the Department of Psychology, visit www.roosevelt.edu/cas/sp.

Student Radio Station - WRBC The Blaze - Broadcasts Again

The student-run radio station - WRBC The Blaze - began broadcasting live in January after 5 years off the air. The first Roosevelt University radio station was founded in 1946 and was heard only on campus. Today, listeners from around the country and world can listen to WRBC streaming live on the Internet 24 hours a day, seven days a week. In its first three months, the station reports listeners from as far away as Florida, California, Washington, Canada, Mexico, England and Singapore.

Journalism student Ashley Mouldon was the driving force behind the revival of the radio station and serves as the station manager. She is joined by twenty disc jockeys and directors who combine talk, sports and a diverse selection of music. Jim Benes, adjunct journalism faculty member and veteran morning editor at WBBM-AM, is the faculty advisor for the station. The launch of the radio station was covered in the February 26, 2009 issue of the Chicago Tribune.

The College of Arts and Sciences and the Department of Communication are proud to support the revitalized student radio station and celebrated the launch by hosting a reception for members of the RU Community at the radio station’s new home on the fifth floor of the Roosevelt University Gage Building, 18 S. Michigan Avenue (also home to the Department of Communication). Listen to WRBC The Blaze at www.roosevelt.edu/wrbc. To contact the radio station, email wrbc@roosevelt.edu.
