Policy on Creating and Awarding Presidential Awards

In the course of University events, there are times when the President would like to bestow recognition, other than an honorary degree or alumni awards, on members of the internal and external community for recognition of outstanding service or exemplary achievement.

In order to appropriately recognize individuals and organizations, awards are given at the discretion of the President. The awards may be given at any time and not in conjunction with any particular event. There are no set numbers of awards or limit on frequency on the distribution of the awards.

The awards are follows:

The Roosevelt University Presidential Medal for Social Justice and Civic Engagement: The highest honor given by Roosevelt University Presidents to individuals or organizations who exhibit outstanding commitment to the spirit of the mission of the University or achievement in the areas of social justice and civic engagement.

Presidential Citation for Service to Roosevelt University: An honor bestowed upon individuals or organizations by the President for exemplary achievement in furthering the causes of Roosevelt University.

The Office of the President will be responsible for activities associated with the enactment of this policy.
